

REVIEWED

By walter at 2:11 am, Mar 25, 2007

Second place | Walter T. Morales

The temperature was 106 degrees under the summer sun in the Moroccan desert, so Walter T. Morales, 42, was looking for any excuse to duck inside.

Perhaps he would enjoy hearing a musical performance, his Imaginative Traveler tour guide asked. Perhaps he also would want to purchase the musicians' compact disc.

Morales drank tea while listening to the music, then bought the CD. He also left with the second-place photo in People of the World with a photo taken with his Sony Cybershot DSC-F828.

"The photo shows a wonderful sense of energy, while the movement adds a quality of timelessness," said judge Mike Davis. "Making a photo about the quality of a place, rather than depicting a place, is a lot higher calling."

A computer science teacher at Portland Community College, Morales chose to take the photo with the camera's sepia setting, adding a brownish tone to the black-and-white image.

MOROCCO | Musicians perform indoors for a tour group in a desert village as the temperature hits 106 outside.